The Vice Regal Visit.

The visit of the Governor of the Dominion of Canada with his lady, Lord and Lady Aberdeen, was quite a real day in the history of Prince Albert.

The notice of the intended visit was very short, being only about twenty-four hours, but the citizens of Prince Albert, headed by the Mayor and Council, went to work with a will in making preparations for the event.

In a trice a town Council chamber was handily decorated, and addresses were got up, and it really wonderful what with clerical every detail
was accomplished.

The Mayor and his Council worked hard trying to have everything as complete as possible, and notwithstanding the short notice, success was wonderfully.

On Tuesday forenoon a great number of citizens assembled at the station to get a glimpse of the noble visitors, and were not disappointed, His Excellency and Lady giving each, as presented, a hearty shake of the hand and a few kind words.

They were then driven to the Town Hall by the Mayor together with Hon. Justice McGuire and Mrs.
McGuire. On arriving at the Town Hall they were received with an ovation of cheers from the assembled crowd. They were then conducted into the Council Chamber, which was fitted up for the occasion.

The first ceremony consisted in the presentation of an address from the Council of the town, which was read by Hon. Justice McGuire, and another from the St. Andrew's Society, which was read by Mr. A. B. Spence.

Then one from the ladies of Prince Albert
to Lady Aberdeen which was read by Mrs.
Young. His Excellency expressed himself as highly pleased with the reception at Prince Albert, and on behalf of Lady Aberdeen and himself thanked them for their kind wishes.

An hour was disposed

party drove to Emmanuel College college where they were received by Messrs. Gale and Pavey. The ladies of the college then presented an address to the

PRINCE ALBERT, (CT. 9, 1894)

The visit of our Governor General and Lady, Lord and Lady Aberdeen to Prince Albert was quite an event in our history, and so far as could be seen a pleasant one for all parties. Ever one that had the honour of being introduced to them were highly charmed by the affability and kindly greeting of our illustrious visitors. Lord Aberdeen is a pleasant gentleman, affable, and without that effusive which distinguishes the snob from the true gentleman. As for her Ladyship, one cannot speak too highly of her. At first sight one would be apt to take her to be a homely, sagacious Scottish housewife, tender and motherly in her demeanour; but on closer inspection could be seen the true born lady. A true daughter of Scotland she, both in her speech and behaviour, is an honour to the country of her birth. Long may she enjoy the good wishes of all who come within the sphere of her influence; and long may Scotland give birth to such noble daughters, and long may Canada live under the aegis of the British Empire, and under its auspicious rule grow great and good in imitation of its illustrious mother land.

When the elections were first spoken of here we had an idea that they were to come off in a very quiet manner with little or no opposition; but recent events have shown, or are beginning to show us that we were as far in our calculations. The constituency of Prince Albert East, it appears, is going to be hotly contested. Mr. Betts, the former member, and Mr. James Taylor of this town are both in the field and each one confident of success, so that at present it is pretty hard to say who will be the winning man. Again, in Prince Albert West, Mr. Alexander Campbell, farmer, has come out to oppose Mr. Lestock Lord with the chances that it will be a close run between them. We hope that the most honest and the most honorable men will get elected. Before quitting this subject there is one thing in this election that we cannot help referring to, and entering our humble protest against the measure; and that the reprehensible idea of having the polling in different parts of the constituency on different days, instead of the more proper way of holding them on one day. For instance, we learn that the polling in district is appointed to take place a week later than the rest of the Division. This, in our opinion, is a grave error because it leaves a wide field open for chicanery and bribery, which may or may not be taken advantage of; but human nature is weak, and because of this every precaution should be taken to diminish the chances.

SASKATOON.

The ninth annual Exhibition of the Central Saskatchewan Agricultural Society was held here on the 3rd and 4th of the current month and was most successful in every way. Mr. Laurier and party visited the show on their return from Prince Albert and were both pleased and surprised at the excellence of the display, which would have been still better if the specimens sent from this place for the Saskatchewan Exhibition Car had been on hand. It is worthy of remark, however, that what of the same sample as that sent by Mr. Henry Smith and sold by Mr. Stovel have been the best at the Toronto International Fair had to take second place at Saskatoon, (see prize list).

The horses, cattle, pigs, grain and garden produce were all good and a credit to the great Fertile district in which they were raised and their owners, but the most satisfactory feature of the show was the judging, concerning which there was not a grumble. Messrs. Russell and White from Prince Albert, who judged the cattle and horses, particularly deserve credit and have the thanks of the society for their efficient services. In the garden products, squashes, melons, citrons and tomatoes were particularly fine, and potatoes, contrary to expectation, were extra good. Following is the

IRE IN ROBERTS' LAND

IN THE OLDEN TIME.

By JAMES STEWART.

FIFTH PAPER.

They carried off, however the officer in charge of the fort and dismantled the place. On their departure Tomson and his party of Indians issued from their hiding place, and put things in as good shape as possible, and packed up the furs into bales, and as poor Tomson could neither read nor write he marked each bale with certain hieroglyphic mark known only to himself. When the ship arrived from England, which she did under convoy, the seasons catch of furs were safe and intact, and were shipped on to the Company's vessel and reached England in safety. For this act of heroism Tomson was constituted Governor of the Company's affairs in the North-western department, and, as I have said, as he could neither read nor write, he was furnished with a competent clerk to do that part of the work. Under Governor Tomson's direction York Factory was built on the present site. Governor Tomson annexed a large tract and when he retired from the service of the Hudson's Bay Company, he came home to his native island in the Orkneys, which is South Ronaldshay, not far from the place. Governor Tomson there endowed an Academy which remains to this day, where any child who attends there gets a free education. I present Tomson's Academy, as it is called, is the great seat of learning for the young men who choose to enter a seafaring life, whether in the British Navy or in the Merchant Marine. It is accounted one of the best places in Scotland for acquiring the science of navigation. And I may say that hundreds of active seamen have received their education there.

These things all came crowding on my mind while sitting on the ruins of the old fort at York Factory, but it was all since here now, and the crumbling stockades and dilapidated walls were all that remained of a once busy place. The actors of that day were all gone from this transitory world and like the old fort were slumbering in silence. The scenes of that time had all passed away, and I was to revisit York Factory at this time the present fort would be in the same condition with regard to myself, as those who were busy actors there when I landed have all passed away, very few of them being alive, and those that are in life have left that place so that there is not one at York Factory now that was there when I landed in 1861.

Five days after our landing from the ship the boats arrived from the Long Portage. These were the boats that brought the furs down from the Mackenzie river district. These left Fort Garry on the Red River about the 10th of June in each year. They were divided into two brigades of five boats each, manned by French half-breeds. Each brigade was in charge of what was called a guide, who were generally as proud of their position as if they were Lord High Admiral of the fleet. At the landing of the guide they camped for the night and at his bidding started forth in the morning. He had no bugle or bell to start the sleepy crews with, he merely stood on the bank and shouted, "How, how, how." Which was generally sufficient to start every man right end upmost, if not, a willow generally did the business. These two guides were a long time in the service of the Company. Their names were Baptiste Bruce and Jean Baptiste Lesperance. They were two very good men and generally treated the young men from the old country with kindness and consideration, but more of this anon. They both died a few years ago at good old age. Each boat was manned by eight men, viz., one skipper one bowman, and six rowers. The skipper steered the boat with a long sweep while the bowman stood in the bow with a long pole in his hand to guide the boat among the rocks on getting over the rapids. The boats I speak of were called the Long Portage boats, on account of this trip they made to Long Portage. They left Fort Garry, as I said before, about the 10th of June and proceeded to Norway House north of Lake Winnipeg, where they took a load of goods for the far north or Mackenzie river district, and then returned to the Grand Rapids by way of Lake Winnipeg and after ascending the Saskatchewan as far as the English river, turned northwards till at length they reached the Long Portage, so called, because it divides the waters which flow eastwards from those that flow northwards. This portage is over twenty miles in length and in former times the goods for Mackenzie's river was carried over on men's backs, but I believe horses are now employed. The Mackenzie river boats were ready on the north side of this portage with the furs from the far north, and to take the goods which were brought up from Fort Garry, and these brigades took the furs and returned to Norway House, from whence they went to York Factory, where they took goods for Fort Garry that had come out by the ship and returned to the River. This trip generally occurred about three and a half months, the boat generally arriving at Fort Garry about the middle or end of September.

These boats on their arrival at Fort Garry in 1861, had on board as passengers Lieut. Hooper, R.N., with twelve women of H.M.S. Plover, was also one in the north searching for Sir John Franklin. The Plover lay somewhere in the vicinity of Williams land or Boothia Felix. Lieut. Hooper and twelve sailors took boat and coasted along the shores of the mainland of North America until they came to the mouth of the Mackenzie river, the season being too far advanced to return to the Plover, they ascended the Mackenzie river in the fall of 1860, and wintered at Fort Simpson. They then embarked on board the Mackenzie river boats and came to the Long Portage, where they were transferred to the Fort Garry brigades, and thus came down to York Factory, where they embarked on board the Prince of Wales for England.

On arriving at York Factory these sailors were billeted in the same house with us. They were a fine set of fellows, open hearted and frank as sailors usually are. On the evening after their arrival they procured some luxuries from the store in the fort and made preparations for a night of joviality, to which several of our party were invited, among the rest Cromarty and myself, together with some of the older hands from the fort. We spent a very pleasant evening in singing songs and reciting stories without anything to mar our good fellowship, with the exception of one little incident, which should be a lesson to many in teaching them to be courteous they should comport themselves in company. The case was this. Two Highland Scotchmen, servants of the Company had been invited to this friendly gathering with the others, who although they could speak the English language very well, kept upon incessant chattering between themselves in the Gaelic language, which none at the table understood but themselves. The sailors bore this rude behaviour for some time, but at length their patience being exhausted, one of them spoke to the Highlanders and told them that their conduct was a breach of etiquette, and common sense might have taught them that when they were the guests of any party they should speak the common language of the company when they were perfectly able to do so but if they wanted to have any private conversation between themselves in their own language, they had better retire to some other place. This remark was understood by the Highlanders who appeared to be dejected at the principles of good breeding, in consequence the chattering in Gaelic was kept up as before, whereupon the sailors rose upon one boat and summarily ejected them from the
